Major League Baseball season is finally here. The MLB season kicked off last week with a scheduled game for every team in the MLB (although rainy conditions in the Northeast led to some postponements). The viewing situation is complicated, so we've broken down everything you need to know about how to watch MLB live streams.

The regular season will run through September 29, so you can expect a busy spring and summer of games. Postseason will start in October. Major league baseball games are spread across various channels, including ESPN, TBS, Fox Sports 1 (FS1), the MLB Network, and regional sports networks (usually through FOX, ABC, and NBC).
